There rolls the deep where grew the tree.
O Earth, what changes thou hast seen!
There where the long street roars hath been
The stillness of the central seas.

ALFRED LORD TENNYSON

The History of the Class of 1934

ON a very warm day in the late fall of 1930 a gangling army of Freshmen stormed the hill overlooking the mighty Aberjona and took possession of Winchester High School.

Due to the crowded condition of the school we had to have our training in the afternoon, while the three upper classes had the morning session.

For our headquarters we picked rooms 35, 22, and 21.

For commanding officers we picked Robert Godfrey for General, Robert Nason as his assistant, Judson Cross as Secretary, and George Davidson to take care of our high finances.

Although we had many promising athletes, they were unable to contribute to the varsity teams because of the afternoon session.

After two months' leave of absence we returned in the fall of 1931, 159 strong, still the infant class in the morning session.

That year we were again fortunate in picking such leaders as: President, Floyd Tremberth; Vice President, Virginia Shaw; Secretary, Clara Horn; Treasurer, Thomas Hannon.

We were able to contribute to sports and the following letters were awarded to the Sophomore class: Football 1, Track 2, Baseball 2, and Basketball 1.

During the year a debating club was formed under the leadership of Mr. Graves.

A riding-breeches revolt started in the school but was unsuccessful.

At the end of the year we had 27 honor students.

All year there had been an awful din around us. They were tearing down our fortress but they had agreed to rebuild it with a new assembly hall, lunch room, gymnasium, and study halls.

The next year we had advanced another year towards our goal.

As soon as we settled down in our revised home, we chose our Junior officers. William McGaragle, President; Virginia Shaw, Vice President; John Thornton, Secretary; George Davidson, Treasurer.

Many Juniors added their talent to the Dramatic Society. In the Junior-Senior class play, "Captain Applejack," coached by Miss Bailey, four Juniors had major parts, while three others had smaller roles.

This year we dedicated our new gym by having the Harvard varsity basketball team play here. Later we had the Springfield gymnastic team give an exhibition.

On the first of April, the Athletic Association put on a Vaudeville show in the assembly hall.

During the year we supplied Mr. Mansfield with two men for Football, four men for Basketball, six men for Baseball, two for Tennis, and one for Track. A great many girls made the grade on the Field Hockey and Basketball teams.

The Junior-Senior proms were combined and were successfully arranged by Floyd Tremberth who was head of the Junior prom committee.

With the words SENIORS ringing in our ears we started on a two months' vacation.

Seniors! that one word tells us that the battle is nearly won. With such leaders as Albert O. Wilson, President; Virginia Shaw, Vice President; Kenneth Smith, Secretary; and Michael Connolly, Treasurer, the battle will surely result in a victory after four years of hard fighting

This year Captain Andrew Lentine led his troop of Football men to the Middlesex League championship, while Dominic Provinzano led his squadron of Basketball men to the co-championship of the same league.

Again we witnessed the Springfield gym team and the second vaudeville show sponsored by the Athletic Association.

The school promoted a very interesting school paper called, "The Highlights."

The Junior-Senior class play "Laff That Off," coached by Mr. Himes, was very well presented with many Seniors starring.

Because of insufficient support no Senior prom was held this year.

Well, the battle of books is over, and those here to-night have been victorious. To-night you celebrate, but remember the war is not won until the final battle is fought and this is only the beginning. Some of you will join in another battle of books in higher institutions of learning. Others have the biggest battle of all to fight, the battle for success in the world.

Let us celebrate to-night and go into the next battle with a will to win and be as victorious as this last one has been.

Class Prophecy

THE development of Robert Foley's and Frank Murphy's "Bigger and Better Harem Society" on the West coast has made rapid progress in the last few years.

Andrew Lentine and Fish Holland have been heard making violent threats directed at one another concerning the management of the 1940 boys' Parlor Rugby and folk dancing squads.

Dexter LeRoy, who is now running Wall Street under the careful guidance of Samuel Insull, finds the services of Margaret Powers indispensable as secretary (?).

Clara Horn is selling her new invention—ventilated toothbrushes from house to house—She claims they are guaranteed to prevent Halitosis.

Rosamond Robb has achieved great fame as designer of evening wear for the Wedge Street nudist colony.

Martha Grant, the successful successor of Walter Disney, has made Betty Bedbug a name in every home.

Jane Roop, the well-known social service worker, has been furnishing oats for the horse of Robert Woodford, collector for the town of Winchester (ash man) during the depression of 1949.

Virginia Hull, popular young debutante, is an enthusiastic attendant at the wrestling matches held in the Swanton Street Gardens where Charles Irwin figures prominently. He threatens to become World Champion.

Congress is holding a special session to discuss Connie Allen's latest petition which states that the requirements for high school teachers be male, strong, tall, and handsome.

Louise Abruzzese may be seen modeling infant clothes in the baby department in the new Winchester Little Building.

We find Dr. Peggy Kenerson and her technical assistant, Eleanor Cook, on trial in the Massachusetts Juvenile Court for prescribing cyanide to relieve the sufferings which have been inflicted by Mary Shaughnessy's reducing diets.

Domine Provinzano, undertaker, promises a special discount to all of the former patients of Lorimer Walker, osteopathic physician. Incidentally, Franklin Eshback chizzles delightful tomb stones.

The spectacular dancing team, Waters and Ellis, is demonstrating the "latest techniques" to Gilbert and Garbo in its spare moments.

Walter is now the distinguished president of the Rose Gypsum Meat Packing Factory, specialists in calves' livers and turkeys' kidneys.

Edward Lawson is proprietor of the first beer garden to be more than 2,000 feet below sea level. Congratulations!

A new book has been accepted by Winchester High School entitled, “Proper Etiquette in 50 Lessons” by Esther Loftus, famous novelist.

Christine Russo, dress designer, has created a new style—an invisible dress cover-all. Mary Humphrey has done much in assisting her.

Evidently even lions are conceited, because Betty Thompson was injured by the model after she had failed to sculptor him to his complete satisfaction.

Barnum & Bailey have Arthur Logue, the African explorer, to thank for their exclusive breed of trained fleas.

Lucy Sawyer is noted for being the first librarian able to find the reference books that Mrs. Stacy recommends to her history classes.

Lloyd Scott has full charge of the department where Dorothy Twombly and Vincenza Vozzella accomplish wonders as secretaries. Lucky boy, or lucky girls?

Edward and James have complete control of Callahan and Callahan Company, dealers in frogs’ tails and pigs’ toenails.

Angelina Derro, in accordance with the first part of her name, is a dealer in harps and halos.

Fred Archer may be found selling his home-prepared hair tonic to the members of The House of David.

Sylvia Hatch, President of the Old Maids’ Society, has finally admitted Eleanor Lampee into the Association.

Natalie Cowles has gotten as far as the base drum in her musical family.

One man who stands very high in his community is John Barry—He sells Wildcat Stocks to widows and orphans.

All the spare time of Anne DeSavage is spent painting pastoral scenes. She specializes in one-horned black and white cows.

The Boston Sympathy Orchestra opened its current season under the direction of Gideo Filipone. Joseph Shea is still playing second fiddle.

William Hanley is translating the hieroglyphics on Egyptian tombstones. He owes his success to Miss Bronson’s patient teachings in shorthand.

Peter Doherty has been appointed 3rd Assistant Truant Officer assisted by Nick Elliott, for the Town of Winchester.

Red Smith has just put a freckle remover on the market.

Leona Elliott is aiding Mr. Bartlett by giving private lessons in bookkeeping to the pupils in the primary grades. That’s her speed! (in bookkeeping).

We find a familiar face among the magazine ads. Gerald Howard poses for Spankum Hair Brushes.

Mrs. Haley (formerly Virginia Shaw) recently started a Home for Little Wanderers to occupy her leisure moments.

Benson has nothing on Gladys Lowe. She owns an elephant farm in Northwest Kentucky.

Betty Bellew is now writing answers to the many questions received through her "Appeal to Lonely Hearts" column in the Winchester Tattler.

Agnes Fallon and Audrey Kelley are doing a twin sister act in a world famous vaudeville show. The only trouble is that they are not sisters and are radically different in appearance.

Harry Collins has been awarded the Noble Peace Prize for separating Winchester and Woburn players after a recent Thanksgiving Day football game.

Dorothy Baldis has met with the highest success in life. She is breaking in her 5th husband. Practice makes perfect!

Elizabeth MacDonald has started a croquet club on the shady banks of the Aberjona.

History repeated itself recently when William McGaragle and Fred Noble fought a duel for the Presidency of the U. S. recalling to mind that of Aaron Burr and Alexander Hamilton.

All the boys are patronizing a certain dentist's office cheerfully. Dorothy O'Melia is there giving solace to the groaning patients.

Thelma Pansera threatens to put the tugs of Boston Harbor out of business by hiring herself out to dock the big ships.

Abraham Levine's legal training availed him nothing when he was sentenced to 20 years for being a shyster—Oh, you nasty man!

Marjory Kidder was recently fired from Filene's because she thought a buyer bought clothes for herself. You're supposed to buy them for the store, Marjory.

Bill Murray's biology team recently won the Eastern Daisy Collection Championship. All due to Bill's coaching.

Jeanette Lilly has Wall Street standing on its ear, and she makes J. P. Morgan look like a piker.

Henrietta Matthews makes a marvelous secretary. She doesn't like her job because her boss makes her write in longhand. It's her beautiful script.

Dorothy Rowen has acquired that coldly impersonal attitude—you know, "Sorry, Mr. Blott is out today."

Anthony Thomas is doing a swell job of juggling accounts for a large banking house.

We understand that Robert Sevene took over the direction of the International Symphony recently, and is now, besides directing, doing almost everything else. He's had trouble with his bassoon player, also the 1st violinist and 2nd trombonist.

Almost any day you can go down to the Wyman School and watch Brenda Skene keep a bunch of yelling brats from breaking their necks on the furniture.

Virginia Stratton is balancing a notebook on one knee and trying to remember her shorthand while her boss dictates.

The 3rd Greta Garbo to make a go of substituting for the great star who is now too old to act is Nan Scully, who is being trained by Greta herself.

Jean Smith has formed a partnership with Alfred Payson Terhune, retired. She does the work and he supplies the ashean.

Dot Baldis' latest novel is out, it's called "The Furness." A best "cellar."

Harriet Cooper is trying to teach a gym class to dance!

Bob Barr was bounced as advertising manager of Pan-American Airways because he insisted on claiming that there were no other decent lines and the Dept. of Commerce got after the company.

Leon Baghdoyan has recently refused the job of Chief Ice-man for the Horn Pond Ice Company. Says it's beneath his class.

Ann Gray is rushing around in a terrible state trying to keep house, be a nurse, and still have plenty of leisure time.

Eva Langille is still running errands for Miss Bronson, although they pay her for it now.

Frances Guild is managing a successful business on the 80th floor of the Empire State Building, although the trouble is, all the suicides seem to pick her office to depart from.

Virginia Smith is holding great audiences spellbound with her sunny smile and great acting ability. One fellow said she wasn't so hot the other day, and this week they are trying 65 men and a three-year old for murder.

John Blaisdell recently refused free electrician service for a high school play. He says he's been doing that just about long enough.

Mary Bond is being a "mystery girl" for Scott Furriers just for fun she says; we think she likes to wear their coats.

Is Mary Boyden still bouncing tennis balls off the back of her garage for practice?

Janet Bradlee has a Chevrolet now and she may get a Buick in five years or so.

David Brinkman is getting his ensign's insignia next spring. We hope he doesn't fall off the masthead or get blown up by one of his guns!

Edward Brown has written a textbook on French to supplement the Brown Chapman Grammar! What a surprise!

Judson Cross won the B. A. A. Marathon again this year. This puts him ahead of Clarence DeMar in number of wins. Marjory was there as usual to cheer him on.

Margaret Ekern is upsetting all journalistic principles in her management of the Boston Herald. And do the readers love it!

George Davidson is Secretary of the Treasury. He hasn't yet, but everyone expects he will abscond with the surplus of 1 cent, and a business panic threatens.

Joey Stoddard has moved away from Brookline, and the town is in mourning for 30 days.

George Welsch has, at last, found a job. He keeps that whiffle all the time and rents himself out as a sanding machine.

Albert Wilson has been confused with Albert O. so often that now he wears a disguise and at last reports was seen hurrying silently northward.

Alan Wood has just put on a very successful operetta. He has Broadway standing on its nose and cheering.

Bob Yeo has gone to live at the North Pole so he can ski all year round. Bob an eskimo!

June Pettingell is called the prophesying secretary. She tells her boss what to do and part of the time she's right!

Our class president and Floyd Tremberth are battling for supremacy. Albert designs indestructible bridges and Floyd compounds chemicals to destroy them. Some fun!

Robert Ward and Elizabeth Sharon are wandering around the terrestrial sphere with blank expressions on their faces. They can't find anything to do.

Dave Wadsworth has designed a rocket to fly to Mars in. The only trouble is, he doesn't know whether or not there are any people there to help him start back!

Lefty Stewart—the only captain whose team has been able to down the redoubtable A's for a complete sweep of the World's Series! !

Mary Haggerty is still striving to thread more than 20 strands into a needle. Her latest achievement was 21 in 24 hours.

John Edwards has invented a gadget which when attached to the ear makes an ideal place to pop gum.

Class Statistics

Best All Round

Try to find something “Betty” Gilbert and “Red” Noble can’t do to perfection.

Most Popular

“Betty” Gilbert and “Bob” Godfrey won’t have to waste any time learning how to become popular for they already have “it”.

Smartest

“Miggy” Ekern and Albert O. Wilson will shine as the “brightness of the firmament”.

Most Athletic

To “Betty” Gilbert and “Andy” Lentine belong the spoils.

Most Ambitious

The bees have nothing on “Miggy” Ekern and Albert O. Wilson.

Most Dependable

If you want a thing done, leave it to Marjorie Dutch and “Bob” Godfrey.

Most Original

We don’t know what next to expect from “Rosy” Robb and Walter Rose.

Most Romantic

“Dot” Waters and Carl Ellis are a second Joan Crawford and Clark Gable.

Most Bashful

The hangover from the Victorian period “the blush” is brought back to you by the special permission of “Betty” Thompson and “Tommy” Hamon.

Best Looking

The trains to Hollywood would be mobbed if we all looked like “Dot” Waters and “Bob” Godfrey.

Best Natured

You may try as long as you like but you can’t get “Peggy” Kenerson’s and “Andy” Lentine’s “goat”.

Best Dressed

“Betty” Gilbert and Albert O. Wilson set the futuristic fashions for our class.

Best Actor and Actress

We expect to see the names of “Gene” Smith and Robert Barr in “big letters” on Broadway.

Best Singers

Brenda Skene and George Welsch are our class canaries.

Wittiest

“Rosy” Robb and Walter Rose always have a snappy comeback.

Slowest

Slow but Sure. That's "Gene" Smith and Lorimer Walker.

Biggest Talkers

Virginia Hull and Walter Rose are the masters in the art of "gab".

Biggest Flirt

Alma Stoddard, Carl Ellis have "it".

Biggest Bluffers

"Nan" Seully and Walter Rose could sell ice cream freezers in Alaska.

Best Dancers

"Dot" Waters and Lawrence Stewart are surely masters in the art of grace and rhythm.

Biggest Eaters

What this country needs is more people like "Peggy" Kenerson and Walter Rose to "eat up" our food surplus.

Most Likely to Succeed

We have high hopes for "Miggy" Ekern and Albert O. Wilson.

Cutest Girl

Alma Stoddard sure carried this vote in a "big way".

Most Wide Awake

"Joey" Stoddard and "Sleepy" Farrell don't miss a trick.

Hottest Temper

"Tempers Lost and Found Department" does a big business with Eva Langille and "Fish" Holland.

Happiest

What a happy world this would be if we could all follow June Pettingell's and Lowell Bowler's example.

Quietest

"Silence is Golden" according to "Betty" Thompson, David Wadsworth and "Red" Noble.

Laziest

You won't find "Gene" Smith and "Sleepy" Farrell doing anything they don't have to do.

Sweetest Girl

"Ginny" Shaw is our Janet Gaynor.

Most Enthusiastic

"Ginny" Hull and "Bob" Godfrey have what it takes to keep up the school spirit.

Class Cut-Up

"Joey" Stoddard and Walter Rose are the live-wires of the class.

Most Interesting

We find "Joey" Stoddard and Albert O. Wilson easy to listen to.

Most Modest

Have you ever heard “Betty” Thompson and “Red” Noble talk about themselves?

Biggest Fussers

Nothing ever seems to suit Mary Hickey and John Blaisdell.

Class Hustlers

Most Changeable

“Peg” Kenerson and “Babe” Walker keep us guessing.

Hardest to Rattle

“Calm” and “Collected” are “Peg” Kenerson’s and “Andy” Lentine’s middle names.

Least Appreciated

Few of us realize how much Elizabeth Sharon and “Brad” Gilbert have done for us.

Most Capable

If you want a thing done well, ask Marjorie Dutch or Albert O. Wilson.

Most Eccentric

We expect most anything from “Miggy” Ekern and John Blaisdell.

Most Respected

Do any of us take what “Betty” Gilbert, Marjorie Dutch, “Miggy” Ekern and Albert O. Wilson say “with a grain of salt?”

Neatest

Spic and Span are good nick-names for Brenda Skene and Albert O. Wilson.

The Last Will and Testament of the Class of 1934

WE, the Class of Nineteen Hundred Thirty-Four, being of good memory and sound mind, do now publish our last will and testament, as fairly as we may, to our most worthy school mates of this beloved W. H. S.

Before leaving our great Class, we wish to leave some of our talents and achievements to some of our successors.

To one Ewart Bairstow, I, Floyd Tremberth, leave my captivating smile with one stipulation—that he make use of it during school hours.

I, Thomas Hannon, will my overabundance of pep, vim, and vigor to Dean Carlton. He may find it useful during mid-years.

I, Sylvia Hatch, will to Ruth Aseltine my exquisite giggle. Use it every place except the lunch room.

I, Andrew "Mother" Lentine, will my task of making the boys behave to Gerry Gaffney. Good luck to you Gerry—You'll need it.

I, Judson Cross, leave my ability to shuffle over hill and dale to a future Dave Komonen, of this school. Who is the lucky winner?

The reputation of "Joey" Stoddard, as a flirt, is willed by the Senior Class to Janet Spencer. Go get 'em, Janet.

To "Steamer" Hanlon goes the eagle eye of "Fred" Noble, the sharp-shooter of our champion hoopsters.

I, Virginia Shaw, leave my irresponsibility to "Nat" Stevens. Carry on my spit-ball throwing, Nat.

The mighty Edward Shinnick is the lucky winner of "Brad" Gilbert's enormous proportions.

The romantic spirit of "Dot" Waters is left behind for Henrietta Garner to pick up and carry onward.

Albert O. Wilson, the beloved president of the Senior Class, and second Clark Gable, leaves his neatness to Lawrence Bairstow.

I, "Betty" Thompson, in a moment of generosity leave my peculiar case of bashfulness to Priscilla Danforth.

I, Virginia Shaw, readily leave my sweet smile to Lee Chamberlain, in the hope that her nice nature may stand out a bit more with its use.

I, Jeanette Lilley, do reverently bequeath my girlish naivete to Jean MacDonald of the Junior Class. Jean, say what you think and assume a very innocent air. You can then choose whomever you wish.

I, Eva Langille, leave my mania for throwing things and for flying into a rage to the "Mae West" of the Juniors, Evelyn Corey. I hope you use it to good advantage.

As the school year draws to a close, I, Eugenia Smith, tearfully leave my beloved brother, laziness, for frequent use to Barbara Berry.

I, Virginia Hull, bequeath my book entitled, "Art of Conversation" to Nancy Hall of the Junior Class.

To Iver Olsen go a couple of strangle holds and a diamond belt of Charles Irwin's, won during the hectic winter of 1933-34 at Waterfield Hall.

In view of the fact that I am moving back to Texas, I hereby bequeath my habeus corpus rights in Jackie Haulon to Lee Chamberlain of the Junior Class.

The school girl complexion of Esther Loftus is willed to "Betty" Whorf.

"Bill" McGaragle leaves his Big Ben alarm clock to "Slicker" Coss. It never goes off.

"Sam" Murphy leaves his interests in the rival school paper to John Doherty with the advice that John get rid of it as soon as possible.

I, George Davidson, leave my ping pong championship to Richard Leghorn.

I, John Blaisdell, leave my telephone number to the school. At any time of day or night I should be glad to answer any call for advice on any subject.

KENNETH SMITH,
ANN GRAY.

Class Oration

PLATO, in his "Republic" describes that ideal state in which every citizen possesses plenty of leisure, and uses it for his benefit and that of his commonwealth. Without a doubt, when one reads this book, he does not suspect that its idealism might become a reality, but in recent years we have been confronted with the problem of what to do with our spare time. The happy goal that the Utopians have been anticipating is near at hand. What shall we do with it? Leisure when not intelligently employed can be destructive.

It is not possible to outline a solution for everyone, but one is able to offer suggestions that may be developed in different ways for the benefit of the individual. The will to work is the most essential instrument. And yet, leisure may be employed by golf, dancing, tennis, baseball and other such athletic activities, but athletics do not engross everyone. Each individual has his own honest interest. Yet, nearly everyone is able to find something he likes to do, and can do well, that in turn will do something for him. Some folk learn to weave, etch, to knit, to work in leather, and even some are able to employ their cellars to raise humble mushrooms. When anything is constructed, the quality of the maker invariably goes into it also. We seem to become a part of the articles we fashion. Thus you may come to know a man by his work. Then, too, let the good that is in you express itself, and what you are able to accomplish, you can teach another. Knowledge is not a thing to be hoarded, it is really only useful when shared. The joy of giving, you know, is deeper than the joy of acquiring. Crafts are not the only means by which the man of new leisure can apply himself. The arts offer a wider and more difficult field yet they can not come too highly recommended. One of the finest arts there is is to live well. A well patterned intellect is surely a desirable objective, but in order to meet the demand necessary we must learn from information. True, one does not expect a person to be well-schooled in every art, but he should at least have some fundamental of the fine arts. The Radio of today presents a large field in these arts. We should learn to cultivate our knowledge so as to be able to derive some benefit or appreciation, and appreciation does not mean dumb wonderment. It means understanding, and to understand one must study. Music, for instance, should be a means by which one is able to derive enjoyment and at the same time profit by the story expressed. Musicians, like artists, have a definite theme in mind when they write music. One should be able to deal understandingly with their subjects. Civilized man's finest possession is an acute and luminous intelligence, cultured and artistic, and quick and truthful in interpretation. The N. R. A. is a godsend to millions of our American people, if they would only take advantage of the opportunities offered by the greater leisure which is at their disposal. The free time before us offers a golden chance whereby men and women are able to inform themselves and at the same time help their fellow men. Helping your fellow men is indissolubly bound up with you as an individual. Their good and especially their bad is responsible for your prosperity in living.

The answers, therefore, to the problem of our new leisure are work and study. Work and study to improve, not only thyself, but thy neighbor. The man who helps anyone to a better place is helping himself and all humanity. And there is no time like the present for no one knows what the future will bring forth. No one should think that there is no place of need for him or nothing that he can accomplish. Much awaits to be done. In all fields, there are problems that are in need of a solution. Use your leisure in any productive channel which you may see fit, but be sure to use it.

GEORGE DAVIDSON

COMMUNISM IN RUSSIAN SCHOOLS

PROBABLY one of the most deep-rooted institutions in America is the public school system. A school was almost the first demand in any pioneer settlement in this country, and has always remained an integral part of the community. Although our country has passed through wars and disasters, the American public school has always continued steadily in its mission—to enable the youth of the land to live a richer, more enlightened, and more useful life. We, who have always seen schools working for these ideals in spite of any political change, find it difficult to realize that in such countries as Russia, Germany, and Italy, the public schools have undergone a drastic change, merely because the reins of government have passed into new hands. A change of administration in this country does not affect the public schools in the slightest. Even an event of such momentous importance to us as the American Revolution had no effect on our schools, yet in the European countries mentioned before, a new premier has meant casting aside almost entirely the old ideas of education. This evening, we shall endeavor to show you how this has been done even though it must be in a very superficial way.

Russia is perhaps the country where the change in school principles, because of a change in government is the most marked. The schools, under the czarist regime were conducted with a great deal of pomp, splendor, and dignity, as was everything connected with the government. They were in large, well lighted, airy buildings, and taught by men of great intellect and ability. These men mingled in the best society, and took great pride in their personal appearance, wearing brilliant uniforms, as did all officers of the government. If they wore beards, they kept them immaculately trimmed; if shaven, they did not allow their faces to become overgrown with hair. They were rigid disciplinarians, and thoroughly competent instructors. The Russian high-school, or gymnasium as it was called, ranked with the best, anywhere in Europe.

As the tuition in these gymnasia and universities was very high, only the children of the nobility, merchant, and wealthy peasant classes could attend. Besides rigid examinations, there was a residence test, which was an inspection of the applicant's home to determine the social standing of the family. Very often families would borrow furniture of one another to make a better impression. When the student was admitted, he was required to wear an expensive uniform, and pay for many costly incidentals. The higher schools did not hide the fact that they desired only the wealthy. The poor nobility were sometimes given financial aid, but the poor peasant children were allowed in elementary schools only, and here learned just enough to make citizens loyal to the czar.

The courses of these gymnasia and universities were purely classical. Work of any kind, whether mental or manual, was considered degrading by the nobility. Moreover, as most of the boys would become officers in the army after graduation, military drill played an important part. It was considered improper for girls to have a higher education, therefore there was no such thing as a girls' college.

The Russian school of today presents an entirely different picture. The government wishes to impress on its youth—its future citizens—the ideals of Communism and equality from their earliest years. Although these communist schools are for the most part held in the same buildings as czarist schools, the grandeur and splendor has been allowed to decay. The teachers are men from the factories, who, because of great proficiency in a certain line of work, have been appointed by the officials of that section to teach this trade to the young. These men are mostly peasants, who are very slovenly in appearance. Most of them were brought up under the czarist regime, and consequently have little education. However, they know their work, and are thorough in their teaching.

The pupils likewise are from the lower classes. A child from the former nobility is refused a public school training. The children of manual workers are given the first opportunity for an education. Until recently, 1931, the children of the intelligentsia, even those of teachers and technicians working for the government, were denied the right of a public school education until the quota of peasantry had been filled.

The schools are directly connected with the farms and factories. Whereas in America we train people for industry; in Russia, education and industry are made one process, so far as possible. The school is supported and run by the factory workers. This contact is the direct outcome of the political and social structure of the new Soviet Republic. It wishes to wipe away the common distinction between manual and brain work. Thus, such a thing as a liberal arts or classical education is unknown in Russia today. Instead, the greatest emphasis is laid upon learning a trade. Pupils under fourteen have practice work with tools supplied by the factory, under the direction of workers from the factory. Pupils over fourteen are given part time work in the factory. They are thereby rid of any distinction between theory and practice.

The range of subjects taught in these Russian schools is decidedly limited, due, in part, to lack of teachers. Reading, writing, arithmetic, and history are taught rather superficially, merely enough to enable the worker to do his job accurately and to make him a good Communist. In industrial subjects, however, the text books are very up-to-date. Since ideas in Russia are always changing, a text book would become hopelessly out of date within a year. To overcome this obstacle, a monthly magazine, The Journal Text-Book, much like the supplements to encyclopediae, is published to keep the existing books abreast with the times. As propaganda comes under the board of education, the new plans of the Russian government are taught in the schools, so that when the students are old enough to become citizens, they will be in sympathy with the government. The whole system of Soviet education exists merely to make the people factory workers and Communists. In fact, the officials admit that "the aim of Soviet education is the practical and theoretical study of the social role of labor."

Those who have done well in the schools may go on to the universities, which are also supported by the government. At first, all the universities were polytechnical; but, as there is a great need for highly trained specialties, these have been changed to monotekhnical schools in everything but name. Many new universities which specialize in a certain subject have been built in the centers where this type of work is most needed. Although poorly housed, they have the best of equipment. Like the schools, they are entirely coeducational.

These colleges are impregnated with Communism, because many of the students will become future teachers in the schools. This Communistic propaganda is used with great effect in the school work. Students are urged to work longer hours, to sacrifice vacations voluntarily, and to acquire more knowledge for the good of the masses. Instead of athletic competition, there is academic competition. This rivalry is encouraged between colleges, between classes, between present classes and former classes. Athletics are encouraged only as a means of recreating the body and resting the brain. A student is promoted or not, according to the opinion of his professors and fellow students. There are no examinations of any sort, for, even in technical lines, stress is placed on the practical rather than the theoretical. After graduation, the student is eagerly seized for a technical or pedagogic position.

Throughout the entire school system, the Soviets are stressing Communism and a practical trade above all other things. They want the students to return home and fire their villages with Communism, for the majority of the people have not been sympathetic towards it. In this purpose they have succeeded, for much of the progress Russia has made has been due to the enthusiastic loyalty of her youth to Communistic ideals.

But this type of education has left the people drab and dull, with no initiative. There is not a piece of modern Russian literature which is worthwhile, for the only theme must be Communism. This is true, not only of books but of movies, and plays, for any other theme would be suppressed. The officials, however, are just now beginning to see the truth of the statement made by Lenin many years ago, that "you can become a good Communist only when you enrich your mind with all the intellectual treasures humanity has attained." They are beginning to introduce subjects into the schools which will make the pupil's later life worthwhile to him, as well as to the government.

Presentation of Gift

*I*T has become a custom as well as a pleasure for the graduating classes to give some gift to the school as an expression of their deep-felt thanks and appreciation for all the school has done for them.

As there is no spotlight of any kind in the auditorium and as one would be used in all school plays, vaudeville shows, and other performances, the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Thirty-four wishes to show its gratitude by leaving with the school such a lamp for the auditorium. May it be of great service to the school and a lasting memorial of our class.

Nazi Propaganda In The German Schools

DEUTSCHLAND—erwacht! Germany—awake! Wake! This is the favorite slogan of the National Socialist Party of Germany. Awake! The cry is short, stirring, powerful. But—awake to what? To the principle of nationalism as upheld by this party with Hitler at its head.

The Nazis, as they are better known, have been in power since March, 1933. On the twenty-fourth of that month, parliament granted Hitler, as chancellor, the right of dictatorship without the Weimar constitution, that of the republic which had just failed, and without any parliamentary government—this for four years. Hitler and his party are making the most of their time. They are not only busy putting their ideas into effect, but are also using violent propaganda to convince the nation of their good sense. Chief among these ideas is the superiority of the Germans. The German nation is sufficient unto itself; it should throw off the chains forged by the allies at the end of the war; it should have no fear; it should develop the arts which are peculiarly its own; Germany must be for the advantage of Germans alone.

These new ideals and the party which fosters them should concern and disturb us. Germany is one of the pivotal countries of Europe; and the state of affairs in Germany makes a decided difference in the state of world affairs. The stronger hold the ruling German party has on the people, the more cause we have for fear. The present party is daily gaining more power by its use of propaganda, especially in the schools. There, young minds must be steeped in the party principles. If Germany is to be purely Germanic and powerfully isolated, the coming generation must have full confidence in the nationalization movement. Minister of the Interior is Dr. Frick. It is he who has established the "guiding ideas" by which education is to be managed. No one can predict how far he will go in transforming the schools into Nazi training camps.

Dr. Frick's purpose is to make education for personal achievement unpatriotic; but education for the service of the state, glorious. According to him, the old plan favored class differences, widened the chasm between the various branches of learning, taught subjects of no earthly value, and nourished no ideas of social responsibility or leadership. However, the new way, his way, trains the pupils to obedience and responsibility. They study for the welfare of all,—all Germans.

Thus, all those who naturally would care little for the supremacy of Germany are discouraged from the schools. There is a law that the percentage of non-Germans in any school must not exceed the percentage in that city. One is non-German if one of the parents or grandparents was non-German. This applies to every school, public, or private, elementary, or higher. Can you imagine any government refusing a child even the rudiments of learning? Likewise, all teachers must be German with German ideals. The national normal school is frankly Hitlerite, with all the students in the brown shirt uniform. These future teachers are the "storm troop leaders of German national education." All present teachers keep their jobs only as long as they side with Hitler.

An interesting point in the new teaching program is that every pupil will pass. If he is slow, the teachers will merely spend more time with him. This is in keeping with the idea of study for the state.

The Nazi principles are drilled into the children even when they are too young to realize it. This has its amusing side. At an educational conference, a radical Hitlerite seriously suggested that, in the story of "Hansel and Gretel," the witch be a Frenchwoman, and that in "Little Red Riding Hood" the wolf be a Jew in disguise.

The text-books for the older children are being revised, and new ones are being written. These books, however, will not appear before next spring.

Dr. Frick plans that the leading studies shall be History, Geography, and Physical Training. The physical training is stressed, for one of the Nazi ten commandments is—"Strike a rogue more than once! When one takes away your good rights, remember that you can only fight against him physically." Thus Hitler hopes to restore Germany's military power.

Geography teaches the importance of the German state. The pupils first study the homeland. Trips are managed by the government, and the ones abroad may be taken only by those who have journeyed through the fatherland. In addition, an exchange is arranged whereby the pupils from one section may visit and study in another.

In spite of all this, history is the most emphasized subject. Henry Ford said, "History is bunk." The Nazis say, "History is most useful bunk." It is the perfect medium for the expression of their ideals. Prehistory stresses the idea of one common origin for the Germans. With the dawn of history, the migration of Germans, so the new histories will tell us, brought about the supremacy of—first Near Asia, then Greece, then Rome. These books will likewise devote a great deal of space to proving the superiority of the Hitler regime over all other governmental forms.

When the pupil finishes this emphatically Nazi course, he has little chance of going to a university. Hitler believes that manual work is no less dignified than intellectual. Moreover, a dependable group of labourers would greatly strengthen the party's power. Out of the many who are prepared to attend the universities, only a limited number will be permitted to do so. Not more than one tenth of these will be women. The qualifications for entry are intellectual and physical fitness, character, and what Hitler calls "national reliability."

An effort will be made to fit the non-professional men and women into suitable positions. However, before that, the secondary school graduates are given one last educational benefit. The boys are offered six months of voluntary labour with expenses paid by the government. They divide their time between government projects and military training.

It is obvious that the Nazi government cares more for the state than for the units, the people, which compose it. All education is for the benefit of the nation as a whole. The question to my mind is this: is the state going to be worth the support of all the citizens when that individualism which made the state more than a machine is crushed?

POLITICS IN EDUCATION

SINCE the World War, changes have been taking place in rapid succession in our country; we have had the greatest prosperity and the greatest economic depression in our history. But events have moved much faster in Europe. Governments have been overthrown and principles have been reversed. You have seen how the Russian revolution has affected education there, how the aim of its teaching has been drastically changed from that of a disinterested culture to an emphasis on mass industrialism. In Germany, too, the change is distinctly marked; one from cultural and general training, laying stress on the personal phase, to one that subordinates the individual to the state. The schools have become centers where every subject is colored with the glory of national theory. The leaders of these countries realize that they can work most effectively through those who will be citizens ten years hence.

But this spirit is not limited to Germany and Russia. There are others: for instance, Italy. The Italian is naturally hardworking and thrifty. The government which preceded the Fascist rule did nothing to support these characteristics and thus aroused distrust. Fascism has backed up these traits and has given the peasant a feeling of security. The Italian also has a keen sense of drama and hero-worship. Fascism has catered to that also. It has combined these two principles and based its educational system upon them. It makes the national state a hero and, although it promises personal liberty, this liberty is contingent upon the policies of the state. The young Italians are given a knowledge of the fine Italian art, the glories of the early Romans, and the patriotism of the later greats of Italy. Thus the child is taught to appreciate Italian history and, by adopting unconsciously the theory that Italy is the great nation of the future that deserves more than its sons can give to it, the government insures an obedient, patriotic citizenry ready for tomorrow.

Japan, too, is yielding to revolutionary tendencies which are reflected in her highly standardized school system. If the young Japanese is planning to enter the commercial world, he first spends six years in the lower school. Then, if he is successful in an extremely competitive examination, he goes on to four or five years in the middle school. This training is followed by another examination which is taken by two thousand students and by means of which examination, two hundred are accepted for three years training in the higher school. If the boy is going to college, and the number of such students is comparatively small, he goes through the same procedure except for a different and more complicated higher school. As in Germany, all the students wear a semi-military uniform to inspire the feeling of equality and national patriotism. If, then, a student goes on through college or commercial school he is anywhere from twenty-two to twenty-five years old when he graduates. The successive list of examinations has beaten down all the individualism he may have had and he readily conforms to the state policies. Thus Japan has placed state above citizen in her newer plan of education. Her change of education system has been extreme, so extreme that the position of the teacher and student has been reversed, the student practically acting as director.

Thus, under the extraordinary conditions that followed the World War, a complete overturn of educational policies has taken place in many countries. Culture has yielded to a standardization of the masses and the schools have been painted red with propaganda.

Although the United States has changed since the war this change has been to a comparatively slight degree. We have not needed a decided change, for our educational practice has already arrived at the point that the Russians are aiming at. We have accomplished in one hundred years what Russia expects to do in ten years. Way back in the early part of the nineteenth century, our public schools came into fairly general use. When we established them, we made no slashing changes from the systems found in European countries at that time. We developed the public school system, but we adopted the classical subjects, such as Latin and Greek, from the continental schools. Our ideas changed very little in the pre-Civil War days, but the war called for manufacturing and production on a large scale. This started "Big Business" and ever since there have been numerous millionaires made from paupers by our industrial system. The great possibilities of this industrialism have loomed large in the mind of almost every American boy and therefore he has made a strong and persistent demand for a technical education. For this reason our schools have specialized in this type of training to the result that we have become the world's greatest industrial country.

The revolutionary European countries, seeing what industrial success we have had with our policies of education, are patterning their systems after ours, but they are trying to make their nation like ours almost over night and are paying no attention to the period of gradual growth through which we have passed. In doing this they have brought on a violent upheaval. One feature is a compulsory group of subjects which are seeped with governmental propaganda. They reason that if they can instill the proper spirit into the minds of the coming citizens, they will become successful. As a necessary preliminary they are educating their children because they will sooner or later return that education to do good for the state. Our policy is quite the contrary. We have reached the stage where we provide education for the blessing and benefit of the individual. One child may have a very delicate sense of painting but cannot read, whereas another may like to experiment with test tubes and chemicals but may abhor history and therefore flunk a course in it. Realizing this condition, our system provides a wide choice of subjects or courses covering the entire field — classical, technical, mechanical, artistic, and commercial. Through this method we made individual development our goal. We believe that every one is talented to some degree in some line and aim to help each to attain success and happiness according to his own mental aptitude and ability.

LOWER CLASSES

A MESSAGE FROM THE SENIORS TO THE LOWER CLASSES

*I*T is always with a tinge of sadness that the members of a graduating class leave their school. We sincerely hope that as our under classmates grow older they will realize more fully the fact that our happiest days are spent right where we are now complaining of the drudgery of schoolwork. But in this schoolwork we have also found a wealth of friendship, and advice, not only from our classmates but also from our teachers. If we can impress you with this fact, we can leave our beloved high school with the feeling that we have accomplished something and left behind something that is worth while and will endure.

History of the Junior Class

President	Ewart Bairstow
Vice-President	Thomas Aldrich
Secretary	Evelyn Corey
Treasurer	Walter Josephson

Not knowing precisely how to deal with the problem of writing the history of the Junior class, the editor of this article read several histories in past Aberjonas, in an effort to discover just how to go about it. The result of this research was far from helpful. Apparently someone had to write the first class history once, so he went ahead in his own way, and was imitated in years hence by many of the other bewildered secretaries. It is high time to blaze a new trail in the history of class histories. Therefore:

In the first place, we entered these stately halls of learning with courageous and unfaltering steps. We weren't "merely Freshies," meek and fearful. The town had realized our evident rank, and provided for us, as a proper background, a grand new addition to the building. It was a gracious compliment to our worth, and we accepted it with quiet dignity.

From then on we have forged right ahead and have made our influence felt everywhere. We have had a good showing in both boys' and girls' sports and various dramatic presentations of the season. We guarantee that we shall continue, as the senior class, to be leaders from next September to June, when we shall forever quit these friendly corridors.

EVELYN COREY

History of the Sophomore Class

In September 1932, the class of 1936 entered the Winchester High School, and since that time has proved itself capable of worthwhile things.

Its major accomplishments during the first year were as follows: The class won the prize for selling the most tickets to the Springfield Gymnastic Exhibition, the girls' class tennis team won the inter-class tournament, and Frank Provinzano, a freshman, played on both the varsity basketball and baseball teams.

On returning to school for the second year, the following officers were elected:

President	John Scully
Vice-President	Gertrude Harwood
Secretary	Fred McCormack
Treasurer	Katherine Gilbert

The second year was more active than the first. Many members of the class won varsity awards. The boys' class basketball team won the inter-class tournament. The Treasurer of the Athletic Association, Kirby Thwing, was a sophomore; and many other members of the class took part in other school activities such as the Dramatic Society, the Thrift Association, the Science Club, and the Traffic Squad.

Already this class has created an enviable record in school spirit and participation in school activities, and has an earnest desire to make Winchester High School proud of it.

FRED MCCORMACK

History of the Freshman Class

John Downs	President
Patrick Gardner	Vice-President
Dorothy Bruno	Secretary
Norman Thornton	Treasurer

As the class of '37, we have conquered the depression and have come through with flying colors. Ward Albro, Fred Croto, Robert Lynch, and Ralph Manning won their letters last fall on the cross-country team, and Robert Lynch is captain-elect for next year's squad. Richard Marsters and John Downs were also on the squad, while George Manning was on the track team.

William Smith and Robert Hushen were on the baseball squad, and Edmund Olson and Kenneth Powers were assistant managers. Joe Cimina won his football letter on the second team and Addison Garner was a candidate for manager.

The Freshman boys' basketball team was second in the inter-class tournament, captained by Arthur Bowler and coached by Mr. Mansfield. Other players were William Smith, Joe Cimina, Edward Manzie, Herbert Wood, and substitutes Richard Sexton, Lucius Smith, John Downs, Raymond Bancroft, and John Elliott.

In the Freshman girls' tennis tournament Dorothy Bruno, Mary Alice Mason, Dorothy Fitts, and Martha Kimball were in the semi-finals.

John Downs was in the play entitled "Three Live Ghosts." Lucius Smith, John Lobingier, and Elbridge Davis were reporters on the Highlights staff.

We'll be at the top of the pile next year, wait and see.

THRIFT ASSOCIATION

Report of the Thrift Association

ALTHOUGH the pupils were ready for banking the first Tuesday after the opening of school, they were surprised to be informed that it was going to be delayed until the end of October. This delay was due to a change in the banking system. The new method has been very satisfactory and more accurate than the former method. In the new bank books the carbon paper is attached. In case of a mistake the book does not have to be sent to the bank but, instead of this, the bank notifies the home room representative, who, in turn makes the necessary correction. This does not involve so much "red tape" as did the former system.

The Thrift Association has maintained a slightly higher percentage than last year and five rooms, namely: rooms 12, 13, 14, 23 and 26, have kept 100 percent throughout the year, whereas, last year, only four rooms had such an enviable record. Room 12 deserves special mention since it has had 100 percent ever since banking was first introduced into the school. Several rooms nearly attained perfect records. The comparison of the lowest and highest percents of last year with this year also indicate improvement in this year's record. Last year 94.8 percent was the lowest and 98.5 percent was the highest. This year 96.09 percent was the lowest, and 99.8 percent has been the highest. The High School as usual led the other schools with an average percent of 97.8. The average amount banked each week has been $20.00

The officers for 1933-1934 were:

Vice-President	Virginia Smith
Secretary	Brenda Skene

STAFF OF "HIGHLIGHTS"

W. H. A. 10-15-1950

The Highlights

*I*N this its second year the Highlights blossomed forth with regular newspaper type and set-up. The first page was devoted to news with a two column headline. On the second page were the double-column editorials and the editor's column. The third page was for sports, and the last was dedicated to personals and continuations.

The features were many and varied. Several team pictures were printed. A series of interviews with members of the Highlights staff appeared. Sam Murphy's weekly Winchell act proved a big sensation. A beauty contest was managed with votes enclosed in six successive issues. The winners, Natalie Stevens and "Moose" Capone, made a personal appearance at the A. A. vaudeville show in early April. A writing contest was sponsored, but the announcement of prize winners was made too late to appear here.

The paper was greatly aided by its advisers. Mr. Hayward worked hard as news adviser. Mr. Graves proved invaluable in the business department, while Mr. Keeney officiated on the editorial staff.

Margaret Ekern was editor-in-chief. Marjorie Dutch served as the head of the editorial staff. The sports editors were Ruth Rennert and Albert Gaum. As long as the personals department was maintained separately, Evelyn Corey was in charge. Dorothy Glidden was art editor. Betty Gilbert managed the news department. Gertrude Harwood, a sophomore, did excellent work as beauty contest editor. Robert Howe was business manager. Barbara Ekern took charge of the exchanges.

The whole year was characterized by the friendly co-operation of the writers and by the betterment of the sales record. May the Highlights continue to grow as it has this year!

JUNIOR RED CROSS

President George Davidson
 Vice President John Scully
 Secretary Priscilla Danforth
 Treasurer Judson Cross

September — 50 bags were filled and sent to the boys of the army and navy. Also the officers accompanied by the faculty adviser attended the Regional Conference at Newton, Massachusetts.

October — 120 units of clothing were collected for the people in need in our own community.

November — Food was collected for Thanksgiving dinners for distribution in Winchester.

December—Boxes were placed in each home room and the pupils contributed money to the milk fund which provided milk for underweight children, who otherwise would have had no Christmas. A box containing ten articles was sent to a Winchester girl in the Rutland Sanitarium.

January — More than 600 magazines were collected for the Seamen's Friend Society. Also a box of valentines was sent to the Children's Hospital of Boston.

February — The president and faculty adviser attended the Regional Conference at the Hotel Statler. Each spoke briefly.

March — A drive for playing cards to be sent to the Veterans' Hospital was the project for March. Also an assembly under the auspices of the Junior Red Cross was considered.

April — The drive for playing cards was extended.

May—The girls of the sewing classes will complete 50 bags.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Athletic Association

THE Athletic Association, under the able leadership of Miss Loysen, Coach Mansfield and the Executive Committee, has completed a very creditable year as regards to finances, social events and general promotion of athletic interest.

The Varsity Football team of '34 is to be congratulated on its great success in finishing the season at the top of the Middlesex League. Two A. A. rallies as well as two dances were held, and many class numerals and first and second team varsity letters were received at the award assembly. The Fall Term was climaxed by an enthusiastic Sports banquet, with Mr. Hayward as toastmaster and several outside speakers. The "Wheeler-Mansfield" Cups were awarded to Betty Gilbert and Andrew Lentine.

During the Winter Term the A. A. again had the fortune of being able to present the Springfield Gym team to an appreciative audience. The boys on the basketball team were co-champion players. Two dances were held, and a novelty basketball game was featured, Faculty vs. Students. The Vaudeville Show this Spring was a great success, both in its interesting presentation and financial results.

The Athletic Association owes its successful season to the able interest of Robert Godfrey, President; Betty Gilbert, Vice-President; Virginia Shaw, Secretary, and Kirby Thwing, Treasurer.

DRAMATIC SOCIETY

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Robert Barr, President

Eugenia Smith, Vice-President

Dorothy Glidden, Secretary

Miss Marion Bailey, Faculty Advisor

FOR the first time in the history of the Winchester High School Dramatic Society, the membership exceeded one hundred and all dues were paid by November 1.

The major production this year was a three act comedy entitled "Three Live Ghosts" which was very successful both from the standpoint of dramatics and of finances. The cast included the following: Robert Dotten, Robert Barr, George Davidson, Lester Gustin, David Wadsworth, Virginia Hull, Elaine Groves, Eugenia Smith, Betty Dissel, John Waite, John Downes, and Lowell Bowler.

A new idea was carried out in the form of a "Stunt Show" which contained eleven acts and was staged on March 23 before the rest of the society. The group producing the best act in the opinion of the judges was awarded tickets to a theatre in Boston. Two other fine acts were incorporated into the A. A. Vaudeville Show which came on April 6. At this show we experimented with a spotlight which we considered purchasing, but other items seemed of more importance at the time.

The last project of the year was in the form of a story hour and tea to which the faculty as well as the members of the society were invited.

THE ORCHESTRA

The Orchestra

*M*R. Slominsky has been succeeded by Miss Tennant as orchestra director. Miss Tennant knows music well and is an accomplished player. With what material she has next year will be a banner year for the orchestra. The orchestra has made only one appearance outside of its Tuesday morning meetings.

Science Club

THE Science Club which budded in '33 under the direction of Mr. Alley burst into full bloom this year. Officers were elected as follows:

Albert Grosvenor	President
Robert Sevene	Vice-President
Myrl Orcutt	Secretary
Esther Loftus	Treasurer

Those who served on the executive board were: R. Sevene, chairman, M. Orcutt, secretary, A. Grosvenor, E. Loftus, E. Smith, J. Twombly, J. Dineen, L. Bowler, J. Collins, and J. Edwards.

Many entertaining as well as instructive meetings were held at which various members showed their skill in performing unusual experiments. The club voted to present a prize of $5.00 or its equivalent to the member considered to have contributed the most to the club.

Much credit is due to the executive board which planned each meeting, and arranged for several interesting trips. Among these was a trip to "Nobles" where generous samples of milk and ice cream were enjoyed. The club visited the Champion Lamp Company in Lynn and became enlightened on the subject of lamp bulbs. During the winter many members attended the popular science lectures at M. I. T. At a special meeting Dr. Tozier of Harvard gave an illustrated talk on natural science.

Next the club set sail for a visit to Boston Navy Yard, after which they boarded the new stream line train "Burlington Zephyr" at South Station.

It is natural to wind up any successful enterprise with "Let's eat" so as their final trip the club visited the warehouses of the First National Food Stores.

The members are as follows:

L. Baghdoyan	R. Dutton	H. Miley
S. Baghdoyan	J. Edwards	V. Monroe
E. Batson	R. Elliott	M. Orcutt
K. Benson	B. Gilbert	J. Roop
J. Blaisdell	A. Grosvenor	F. Scholl
A. Bowler	D. Grosvenor	R. Sevene
L. Bowler	F. Harkins	E. Sharon
W. Burt	T. Harkins	E. Smith
J. Collins	P. Hartwell	D. Tead
E. Corey	E. Jennings	M. Thwing
P. Cornwall	M. Kidder	J. Twombly
J. Cross	A. Levine	F. Walker
J. Dineen	E. Loftus	A. Wilson
B. Dissel	R. Mansib	R. Winton
	C. MacDonald

ATHLETICS

FOOTBALL TEAM

Football

THIS year the football team enjoyed one of its most successful seasons in many years. The team brought to the school its first Middlesex League Championship since entering the newly formed circuit.

With but very little veteran material available Coach Mansfield molded his team around Captain Andy Lentine, star center and one of the greatest athletes ever turned out at Winchester High.

The team opened its season with a 6 to 0 win over Saugus, the only score coming on an 85 yard touchdown run by Frank Provinzano. The following week the team journeyed to Arlington to meet a heavier and more powerful eleven. Without the services of their captain, the locals went down to defeat 18 to 0.

The first game of the league schedule proved to be one of the most thrilling with Maynard edging out a 12 to 6 win. This game was forfeited to Winchester later because of the ineligibility of one of the Maynard players. Going to Stoneham a week later the Red and Black really showed what they could do by winning 20 to 6.

Concord came to town a week later and set back the locals 7 to 6. This was the last defeat Winchester received.

At this stage of the season Winchester hit its stride turning back a highly favored Lexington team 6 to 0. This game however, was a costly one for the Winchester team as Dave Grosvernor, in a great attempt to score on a long run suffered a broken right arm on being tackled by the Lexington safety man.

The next game was a non-league tilt with Wellesley, Winchester coming out on the long end of a 20 to 0 score.

The game that was to decide the championship found Winchester entertaining Belmont. After four periods of the hardest of football the Winchester eleven came out victorious 12 to 6.

Thanksgiving Day Woburn, Co-champs of the Mystic Valley League, came to Winchester. Scoring on a long pass from the fingers of Tom Hannon to the outstretched arms of rangy Joe Josephson the Winchester boys completely outplayed the ancient rival, winning 6 to 0. It is estimated that 10,000 spectators crowded onto Manchester Field to witness this game, one of the most thrilling in many years.

BASKETBALL TEAM

Boys' Basketball

WINCHESTER High School's basketball team opened a very successful season by defeating a strong Alumni team composed of many of Winchester High School's former star athletes.

The high school team was captained by Dominic Provinzano, a high scoring forward. Soon after the Alumni game, the student body, as well as the basketball squad, received unexpected news to the effect that Captain Provinzano would be unable to play basketball for the remainder of the season upon advice of his physician.

This smart and aggressive team, capably coached by Wendell D. Mansfield, opened its Middlesex League schedule by defeating its five rivals in the league during the first half of a strenuous schedule.

During the last half of its league encounters, Winchester lost two hard fought games, one to Belmont and one to Wakefield, the team that Winchester now shares the Co-Championship, both teams winning 8 out of 10 league games. Due to a ruling in the Middlesex League Constitution, this tie was not played off.

During the course of the season, Winchester lost a hard fought contest at Milton and later two games to a strong team from Woburn, thereby closing the season with a total of 9 out of 14 games won.

This team was managed by Gerald Howard, assisted by John Doherty, who was chosen manager for the 1935 season.

Frank Provinzano, star sophomore athlete and brother of this year's captain, was elected captain for the season of 1935.

The following boys received varsity awards:

Capt. Dominic Provinzano	Manager Gerald Howard

TRACK SQUAD

Track

THE outstanding feature of this year's track team was not in the performance of the team itself but more in that of the team's captain, Jud Cross. Jud was undefeated all year, despite the fact that he ran both the Mile and Half Mile. In the Harvard Interscholastics, he won the class C Half Mile run and, in doing so, missed the record by one fifth of a second. In every meet this year he has proven himself to be one of the greatest track captains Winchester has ever had.

The team, as a whole, had only a fair season. It defeated Wellesley, came in second in the Middlesex Meet, but lost to Wakefield, Lexington, Belmont and Woburn. The Lexington Meet was very close, Winchester losing by only four points. The Woburn Meet was also close, with the Broad jump deciding the outcome. Both of these Meets could have, with a little luck, been won by the local team. The team is also going to Fitchburg where it is entered in the Relay Carnival. Winchester was third in its class last year and should make a good showing this year.

The team is losing several good men this year through graduation. Heading the list, of course, is Captain Cross, Dave Wadsworth, a sure placer in the 440 yard dash; Bill Murray, who has bowed to only two men in the shot put; Lloyd Scott, the best High Jumper Winchester has had for the last couple of years; and Al Wilson, one of the hardest working men on the squad.

Gerry Gaffney, Limey Matthews, Larry Bairstow and Al Gaum are underclassmen who are receiving letters and who will form the nucleus for next year's team. Ewey Bairstow, Bob Graham, Dick Glendon, Ralph Manning, Pat Gardner, Roger Downes and Dexter Derby are others who will constitute the next year's team.

Cross Country

THE Cross Country team led by Captain Jud Cross, who is also Captain of the track team, had a very successful season. With Capt. Cross the only veteran returning, Coach Richard Murphy soon molded a team that won every dual meet it entered. In the Middlesex League meet held at Wakefield it finished third. The letter men of this year's team are: Capt. Jud Cross, Capt.-Elect Robert Lynch, a freshmen; Fred Croto, Richard Manning, Michael Connolly, John Downs, and Ward Albro.

BASEBALL SQUAD

Baseball

THIS year's baseball team has enjoyed a fairly successful season. Greater interest has been displayed in this real American game than in many years.

With five veterans returning it looked as though another championship team was to be turned out at Winchester High this year but the new inexperienced material did not come along as good as was expected. However, next year this situation will be taken care of as Coach Mansfield also ran a second team schedule this year to give the new-comers the needed experience.

THE SCHEDULE:

Winchester	5	—	Wakefield	2
Winchester	3	—	Woburn	11
Winchester	7	—	Maynard	9
Winchester	7	—	Stoneham	6
Winchester	9	—	Belmont	8
Winchester	8	—	Lexington	6
Winchester	7	—	Reading	4
Winchester	2	—	Stoneham	5
Winchester	3	—	Maynard	4
Winchester	7	—	Concord	11
Winchester	5	—	Reading	1
Winchester	16	—	Belmont	2
Winchester	2	—	Concord	8
Winchester	7	—	Lexington	1
Winchester	8	—	Woburn	3

The letter men for this year's team are: Captain Fred Noble, George Davidson, Frank Provinzano, Tom Donaghy, Sam Murphy, Lawrence Stewart, Albie MacDonald, Andy Capone, Bus Kendrick, Danny Coss, Joe Dineen and Manager Joe McNally. Thomas Donaghy has been elected captain of next year's team.

TENNIS TEAM

THE 1934 Boys' Tennis Team will probably be the last one to play in the Suburban Tennis League, for next year it is dropping out. The reason for this is easily seen by the scores of this year's League matches. The only teams which furnished competition were Melrose, who is also dropping out of the League and Watertown, who will be weakened next year by the loss of nearly all of its good players. The team feels that it will gain by having matches with stronger schools.

The team had no stars on it but was made up of steady, reliable players. Number one position was jointly shared by Lorimer Walker and John Scully, each playing six matches in that position. Little Joe Josephson was the big surprise of the year. He astonished everybody by gaining number three post with nothing more than an ability to return most shots. Dean Carleton was the number four man, Wee Willie McGaragle, number five, and Captain Bob Woodford was number six. Tom Aldrich was number seven and manager. The year's record is as follows:

LEAGUE:

Winchester	1	—	Melrose	4
Winchester	5	—	Watertown	0
Winchester	4	—	Belmont	1
Winchester	4	—	Lexington	1
Winchester	2	—	Winthrop	3
Winchester	2	—	Melrose	3
Winchester	3	—	Watertown	2
Winchester	5	—	Lexington	0
Winchester	5	—	Belmont	0
Winchester	1	—	Winthrop	4

TENNIS TEAM

Girls' Tennis

Sylvia Hatch, Captain	Natalie Cowles, Manager
Ruth Aseltine	Philippa Kelley
Mary Boyden	Ruth Cutter
Dorothy Waters	Ruth Bernard
	Janet Spencer
	Kay Gilbert
	Gretchen Cleaves

The 1934 Tennis schedule started off with a Tennis Play Day in which four outside schools participated. The prize was awarded to one of the players from a private school.

Following is the schedule:

Winchester lost to Newton	3—2
Winchester won from Lexington	5—0
Winchester won from Brookline	5—0
Winchester won from Concord	5—0
Winchester won from Watertown	4—1
Winchester vs. Arlington
Winchester vs. Belmont

Next year's varsity team is going to be without three of the best players, who are graduating this June.

FIELD HOCKEY TEAM

Field Hockey

DESPITE the fact that Winchester High's standing in the Interscholastic League was a tie for third place with Stoneham and Melrose, the season was very good. The girls won six games, dropped two, and tied four; the league games resulted in two wins, one loss, and three ties. Winchester was credited with excellent stick work and defensive record.

The first game of the season we played Melrose to win 5 to 0, but when we met them later in the league game it resulted in a scoreless tie. Concord and Winthrop were also ties; Swampscott and Belmont bowed to us; and Arlington beat us 2 to 1.

This year's team was captained by Betty Gilbert, and managed by Brenda Skene. At wings were Dorothy Waters and June Pettingell; inners were Captain Gilbert, Sylvia Hatch; center forward, Dorothy Glidden; halfbacks, Gene MacDonald, Barbara Berry, and Betty Emery; fullbacks, Virginia Shaw and Gretchen Cleaves; goal, Peggy Kenerson. Of these Berry, MacDonald, Glidden, and Cleaves are the only first team members not to graduate; but this year's unbeaten second team will be available next year.

BASKETBALL TEAM

Girls' Basketball

ALTHOUGH the girls were not champions and not always victorious, enthusiasm ran high throughout the 1934 Basketball season. About one hundred and eighty girls appeared for tryouts from which class teams and the varsity were chosen. Every girl was on either the first, second, or third team of her class and participated in the tournaments that followed.

Our first varsity game was on January 12. We went to Melrose only to be subdued by the score of 22 to 7. In the games that followed with Arlington and Watertown we were left far behind, their scores being in most cases double that of ours. However, our spirits were not dampened and when, on March 2nd, Melrose returned our game we gave them our best and were victorious by the score of 24 to their 17. The varsity closed its season in a spirited game with the Alumni, Winchester High being the victors.

In the inter-school class games this year, Winchester played two schools, Melrose and Reading. The seniors were the only ones to be victorious in both events; the juniors were beaten both times; and the sophomores won one and lost one. Like last year, varsity members were not able to play in these games.

Girls receiving first team letters this year were Dorothy Glidden, captain, Harriet Cooper, Betty Emery, Natalie Stevens, Pauline Rollo, Betty Blake, Barbara Berry, Gretchen Cleaves, and Priscilla Danforth, manager.

Girls' Spring Athletic Program

TENNIS once again leads the fine Girls' Spring Athletic Program for enthusiasm, with baseball and track following close behind. Archery, something new in W. H. S., is a possibility too and a truly exciting one, providing that equipment is able to be procured at a 1934 price level. But to get back to tennis, in the annual April vacation tournament "Sil" Hatch, Ruth Aseltine, Mary Boyden and Dot Waters led the play in this respective order with "Sil" wearing the winning colors. Thus the varsity at this early date in the season, according to ability, are as follows: Sylvia Hatch, Ruth Aseltine, Mary Boyden, Dorothy Waters, Ruth Cutter, Philippa Kelley, Katharine Gilbert, Frances Kelley, Janet Spencer and Ruth Bernard. A brilliant season is forecast for the team which places a great deal of faith in Sylvia, semi-finalist in the 1934 Junior National Singles Indoor title tournament of this past winter. The team has been very fortunate in securing the Winchester Country Club courts for the inter-school matches, so, the best of luck! An elimination tournament is being held to determine the nine best players for the class teams. A round robin inter-class tournament will then be played to determine which will be the lucky girls to wear their class tennis numerals.

Baseball is even more popular in this, its second season, than in its debut of '33. At this time more than enough are going out to comprise both class and varsity teams. Unlike most sports, varsity players are allowed to play on their class teams. The varsity has challenged Melrose, Arlington and Lexington and may their first season of real competition obtain highest success. In addition to varsity letters, numerals will be awarded to the team winning the inter-class tournament.

Track too is becoming more and more popular under Miss Loysen's direction. The events now participated in are the forty yard dash (racing start) fifty yard dash, baseball throw, running broad jump, hop step jump, standing broad jump, Western high jump, and possible hurdles.

Thus lies the plan of the girls' spring athletic program which we think proves conclusively that Winchester High girls are headed for bigger and better things in the sport line.
